

Telepresence

- New technologies designed to allow a person to feel as if they were present in the other location
 - projecting their body movements, actions, voice and facial expressions to the other location or person
 - e.g. superimpose images of the other person on a workspace